Intellitar signs Strategic Agreement with MEI Technologies, Inc.

MEI Technologies takes equity position in the company

Huntsville, AL — March 1, 2010 — Intellitar Corporation today announced it has signed a strategic agreement with MEI Technologies, Inc. to distribute the company's Intelligent Avatar Platform™ (IAP) technology. As part of the agreement, MEI Technologies has become an investor in the company. Working together, the companies will develop a long-term strategy to deliver IAP into a broad range of customer markets. MEI Technologies will initially provide product and technical support to Intellitar as it launches its hallmark product offering called Virtual Eternity™. Virtual Eternity is a Web-based, legacy social network that allows individuals and family members to create virtual clones of themselves. As users populate and educate their digital brain with details of their life, these intelligent avatars will now look, sound and behave like their creator.

"We are excited to have signed this agreement with MEI Technologies, Inc., a growing technical corporation that shares our values of ethics, integrity and customer focus," said Don Davidson, CEO of Intellitar. "In addition to its capital investment, MEI Technologies provides a strong balance of technical support resources and a growing, government and commercial customer base."

"We are pleased with the strategic agreement made with Intellitar," said MEI Technologies CEO Ed Muñiz. "As MEI Technologies continues to diversify, Intellitar and its Virtual Eternity™ product are innovative approaches in continuing to provide the highest possible quality of products and services.”
